CONNORIZED "Uke Roll" #7960: LONESOME AND SORRY, Fox Trot; Played by Joe Gold; ©1926 Henry Waterson Inc. "Uke" rolls, which feature finger positions for ukulele printed along with the usual words (plus a tuning chart at the beginning of the roll), apparently never attained any great popularity and are quite rare today. They are not accompaniment rolls in the usual sense, in that all the music is there; the piano provides both solo and accompaniment, with the ukulele, if used, simply supplementing (but never replacing) the latter. Mr. Gold's arrangement of this piece leaves absolutely nothing to be desired, and is replete with lots of marimba effects — uncommon for a fox trot.
